TREE REGISTRY

For Austin, Texas

1976

INSCRIPTION OF A MARKER HONORING
A LIVE OAK TREE WITH A CIRCUMFER-
ENCE OF 15'8" BELIEVED TO BE 700
YEARS OLD, LOCATED AT THE NORTH-
EAST CORNER OF THE INTERSECTION OF IH35 AND BRAKER LANE.

It is estimated that this tree began growing at about the time the Crusades of the Middle Ages were coming to an end. When Christopher Columbus discovered America in 1492 and when Martin Luther posted his 95 theses on the door of the church in Wittenberg in 1517, it would have been over 200 years old. Cabeza de Vaca on his way across Texas in the 1530's could have rested in its shade. Indians of the area were perhaps camping near it when Coronado and DeSoto were conducting their explorations between 1539 and 1542. It was a sturdy patriarch in the late 1600's when LaSalle built Fort St. Louis on the Gulf Coast and the first Franciscan missionaries went to East Texas. It existed under the six flags of the French, Spanish, Mexican, Texian, United States, and Confederate regimes. If a tree follows the news, it may in the 1820's have heard Tonkawa and Comanche Indians speak of the coming of Stephen F. Austin and other empresarios with their settlers in the 1820's and 1830's. Travelers passing it spoke of the fall of the Alamo in 1836 and of secession in 1861. It watched quietly as cattle were driven up to the Chisholm Trail in the 1870's and as the Capitol was rising in the Austin of the 1880's. It has seen automobiles replace horses in this century and it has observed the growth of Austin from a frontier village to a modern city.

TREE REGISTRY — 1976

Austin, with its many trees, is indeed a beautiful city. We owe our good fortune to the enthusiastic citizens who, during the course of the last hundred years, through their wisdom, generosity, and far sighted planning, built this city which is ours today. But what our forefathers did for Austin, they did not do for themselves. They did it for us. They constructed the dams that gave us our lakes. They laid out wide streets, spared the creeks, and set aside land for parks. Few other cities can boast of so much green space, and our trail system is nationally acclaimed.

Today we, too, show much reverence for old and time honored things within our city, witness the money we spend and the loving care we apply to restore old buildings. I hope we will gradually come to treat trees with the same respect. And we should! For many are much older than any man-made structure in Austin. And they are alive! They are living things which have watched the growth of our city while miraculously escaping man's axes and bulldozers for these many years.

Trees are complex chemists, holding a balance between the elements we need to live. They create food from light, water and carbon dioxide, and in the process release the oxygen we breathe.

Trees are homes for birds, small animals, and insects which play important roles in maintaining nature's balance.

Trees help us conserve resources, shading us from the summer sun, screening us from winter winds, putting down fine networks of roots to hold the soil, providing an inviting out-of-doors, creating cooler breezes and healthier air as well as a greater likelihood of rain.

Trees help us communicate with nature: New growth heralds spring; autumn's color warns of coming frosts; and lacy, bare boughs against a winter sky remind us of the intricate balances and cycles in our environment.

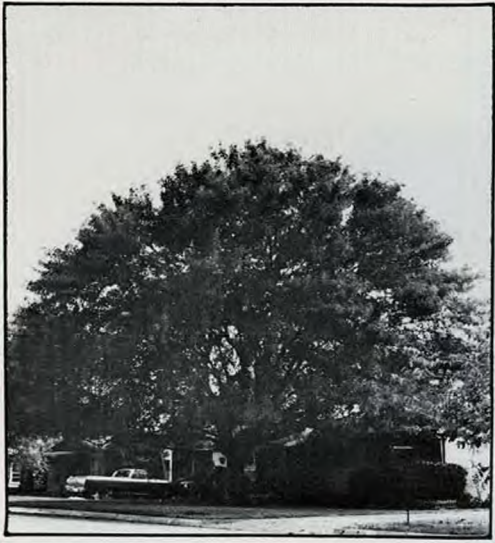

To heighten our awareness, to rededicate ourselves to the preservation of our trees, every year in January Austin citizens join together in the observation of "Think Trees Week." Special ceremonies are planned for Arbor Day which, as designated by the governor of Texas, is celebrated on the third Friday in January.

During "Think Trees Week," 1976, we began accepting nominations of trees to be included in this registry which represents one of Austin's Bicentennial "Gifts to the Nation." On the eve of Independence Day, 1976, bronze medallions bearing the official City of Austin Bicentennial emblem and the legend "Registered Tree, City of Austin, 1976" were presented to the owners of outstanding trees. With funds raised privately, medallions were purchased for such trees located on public land.

This modest booklet is but the beginning of a continuing project. It contains a listing of over 230 trees located within the city limits, which are either exceptionally old, tall, large in diameter, well-shaped, rare in Austin, historically significant or otherwise unique. A second edition will be published as funds become available, and as additional entries are submitted.

"Think Trees Week" 1977 is a good time to publish a registry of some of the outstanding trees with which we are blessed in Austin!

OUR LARGEST TREES

1. CYPRESS, 20 feet-11 inches, located on South bank of Town Lake, about 300 feet west of Barton Creek. Probably the largest tree in Austin. Near the water, it was difficult to measure, and probably not as old as trees dependent for their moisture on rain alone.
2. COTTONWOOD, 20 feet-2 inches, located in a field north of Avenue D, barely alive, as it was either struck by lightning, or a fire was built inside it.
3. CYPRESS, 19 feet-2 inches, located west of Barton Creek, on the South bank of Town Lake.
4. LIVE OAK, 18 feet, at 2015 Encino Circle. Forks close to the ground, measurement taken of one of the branches, amounting to two thirds of the tree.
5. LIVE OAK, 17 feet-6 inches, on South First Street at Krebs Lane. A proposed zoning change involving this tree launched the THINK TREES campaign.
6. LIVE OAK, 16 feet-10 inches, at 5602 Preswyck.
7. LIVE OAK, 16 feet-10 inches, at 2605 South Lamar Blvd.
8. LIVE OAK, 16 feet-7 inches, at 1302 Nueces Street.
9. LIVE OAK, 16 feet-7 inches, at 1303 Lorrain.
10. LIVE OAK, 16 feet-6 inches, at 2815 Wooldridge.
11. LIVE OAK, 16 feet, on the Southwest corner of the American Legion Post property at Lake Austin Blvd.
12. LIVE OAK, 16 feet, at 2810 Oak Springs Drive.
13. LIVE OAK, 15 feet-6 inches, inside the gate of Austin Memorial Cemetery on Hancock Drive.
